JSGW is a resource for professionals working with groups in clinical, organizational, educational and community settings.

Aims & Scope

As the official publication of the Association for Specialists in Group Work, The Journal for Specialists in Group Work is directed toward group work practitioners with a focus on group work theory, interventions, training, current issues, and research. The group process is a powerful method for development and change in the individual, the organization, and the community.

The Journal for Specialists in Group Work expands our understanding of this dynamic field. In each issue of the journal you'll find peer-reviewed articles that:

- promote the practice of group work
- cover the continuum of types of group work - from task to therapy groups
- emphasize the processes that make groups effective
- integrate theory and practice
- provide specific information about how to lead groups and train group leaders.
