March 2011

Dear Colleagues:

As counselors, we share a common professional identity and a unique set of skills. These attributes bond us together, allow us to collaboratively advocate for the counseling profession, and empower us to make a difference in the lives of our students and clients.

The 28th Annual All Ohio Counselors Conference will continue the tradition of providing counselors with opportunities to connect with colleagues and experience quality professional development. Please join us this November 2-4 at the Hilton at Easton for the 2011 conference.

At this time we invite you to consider sharing your expertise and experience by submitting a presentation proposal. Based upon feedback from past attendees, we are actively seeking proposals for sessions with engaging practices that can be easily implemented into one's professional practice. When submitting your proposal, you will have the option of selecting either a 60 or a 90 minute session length. If you are uncertain what might be a good topic to present, please check out the on-line submission form for an extensive list of ideas for presentation.
