

OHIO
UNIVERSITY

OHIO UNIVERSITY AND THE PATTON COLLEGE OF EDUCATION

Established in 1804, Ohio University is the oldest public institution of higher learning in the historic Northwest Territory and the State of Ohio. As a comprehensive, national research university, it offers distinctive, high-quality education. Nestled in the foothills of the Appalachian Mountains, Athens' natural beauty provides a picturesque backdrop for a quintessential college town that boasts a vibrant community of 21,000. Ohio University is categorized as a Carnegie RU/H: Research University (www.ohio.edu)

The Patton College of Education serves over 890 graduate students and approximately 1800 undergraduate students in five departments: Counseling and Higher Education, Education Studies, Teacher Education, Human and Consumer Sciences, and Recreation and Sport Pedagogy. The successful candidate will join the College as a member of Family and Consumer Sciences Education in the Department of Human and Consumer Sciences. The College has a proud history spanning 120 years. Our influence is felt both locally and globally. We were the first public teacher preparation program in Ohio. Today, The College, employs more than 75 outstanding faculty members with expertise and experience that extends across four continents. By forging trademark partnerships that address the social, economic, and educational issues affecting public school children's ability to learn, the College of Education continues to have a profound impact on the state of education in our region and the nation. (www.ohiou.edu/education)

For more information about Ohio University, please visit the University website at www.ohio.edu.

For additional information about The Patton College of Education, visit our website at <http://www.cehs.ohio.edu/>

Family and Consumer Sciences Education
Department of Human and Consumer Sciences
Lecturer/Coordinator

The Ohio University College of Education and its Department of Human and Consumer Sciences invites applications for a full-time Career Track Lecturer/Coordinator (Group II) faculty position in Family and Consumer Sciences Education. The faculty member reports to the Department Chairperson. The successful candidate will be responsible for teaching online and face-to-face undergraduate courses, supervision of students in practicums, field trips or internships, participating in curriculum/course development, program review and assessment, and Department accreditation activities, advising and mentoring undergraduate students, promoting program growth (e.g., undergraduate recruitment and retention activities), serving as a faculty liaison in student organizations, and providing service to the university, community and profession. We seek a candidate who is committed to working with students and colleagues from diverse populations.

Required qualifications include:

- Master's degree required in the field of Family and Consumer Sciences Education; doctorate preferred.
- Evidence of successful college/university teaching experiences and ability to teach courses, such as: Community and Workforce Opportunities in Family and Consumer Sciences, Families as Consumers in Global Communities, Teaching of Family and Consumer Sciences, and Writing in Human and Consumer Sciences.
- Commitment to the use of technology in the teaching-learning process.
- Professional industry experience required.
- Demonstrated ability to mentor and supervise students in practicums, field trips or internships. Professional-Technical certifications desired.
- Appreciation for and ability to work collaboratively.

Application Process:

- A cover letter that addresses all position qualifications noted above
- Supply the names and contact information (addresses, phone numbers, and email addresses) of at least three professional references
- Vita/Resumé

Applicants who are not U.S Citizens must state their current visa and residency status.

The position will remain open until filled. For full consideration, please apply by January 11, 2015.

Questions should be directed to: Dr. Beth VanDerveer, vanderve@ohio.edu
Interim Chairperson, Department of Human and Consumer Sciences.

Positions are contingent upon funding. Salaries are competitive and commensurate with qualifications and experience.

Ohio University is an Affirmative Action, Equal Opportunity Employer. The College works to increase its diversity and encourages applications from persons of underrepresented and traditionally dominated cultures, women and persons with disabilities.