

12.01.17 @ 4PM
Irvine Hall 159

“New Fossil Discoveries from the end of the Age of Dinosaurs in Antarctica”

Dr. Matthew Lamanna

Dr. Lamanna is the assistant curator of Vertebrate Paleontology at the Carnegie Museum of Natural History. His main research interests include Mesozoic continental vertebrate anatomy, paleogeography, and paleoecology, emphasizing Cretaceous Dinosaurs of the Southern Hemisphere and the Mesozoic Evolution of Birds.

OU BSGS Seminar Series

Guest Lecturer:
Dr. Matthew Lamanna

12.01.17 @ 4PM
Irvine Hall 159

Assistant Curator of Vertebrate Paleontology

Carnegie Museum of Natural History

Sponsored By:
Ohio University
Biological Sciences
Graduate Senate