

NAVIGATING FROM CAMPUS TO FINANCIAL INDEPENDENCE

It is essential that your generation gets the foundation of your eventual financial independence right. Why? Because you need to look no further than the previous generation, the Baby Boom, to see the hard times ahead:

- Of 46-64 year olds
 - 25% have NO retirement savings
 - 46% have less than $10,000 saved
 - 60% say the total they have saved/invested <$25k
- 70% say they will work after retirement
- 40% say they will work 'until they drop'
- 56% have outstanding debt when they retire
- 36% on Social Security have nothing else

IS THIS THE LIFE YOU WANT? Of course not!

The Speaker: Alan J. McMillan, is an expert on critical life skills for emerging college talent. In this event he will demystify personal financial strategy and use live modeling so that you can get a glimpse into your eventual financial future. His sessions are known for their high energy and entertaining style.

Many of those who have taken this session (here at OU, MIT, Syracuse, Howard, Virginia Tech to name a few) have called it life changing.

You must not squander you 20's. It is key that you take simple actions while on campus and then when you get your first job. If you do, and form early habits you will be more than fine. If you don't you will be screwed financially.

Come to the event & you will get:

- Early financial awareness
- Live audience polling so you can see how you compare in financial readiness vs. your peers
- Ideas for next actions that you can implement immediately
- A strong basic understanding on how to get this dimension of your life right
- A chance to set initial career goals that will serve you well in later life

WHY STUDENTS TRADITIONALLY BLOW THIS MOMENT?

- Personal finance and planning seems so complicated that they do less than they should
- And, they think when they get some 'real money' they will start to work on financial independence.
- THIS IS A HUGE MISTAKE.

McMillan will deliver the goods to create a life-changing experience for you.

You are about to hit a key financial inflection point moving from campus economics to career economics. This is critical. You will learn how to capitalize on this moment.

You can get this right.

You can navigate from right here, right now, to financial independence.

This is a life changing experience. Come, Sunday, November 2nd, 6pm-8pm in Baker Ballroom.
