

What kind of community do you want to live in?

Become part of a local, state, and national movement to take the power to govern out of Corporate Boardrooms and put it back in our communities where it belongs.

DANIEL PENNOCK*

DEMOCRACY SCHOOL

With Ben Price and Emelyn Lybarger of the Community Environmental Legal Defense Fund

SENIOR CENTER, ALBANY, OHIO

December 5, 2014 — 6:00 - 9:00 PM and December 6, 2014 — 9:00 AM - 5:00 PM

Cost Is $125 Including Lunch and Democracy School Curriculum Materials
(Limited Scholarship Aid is Available. Request with your application)

Seating is limited to 30 Participants - Registration in advance is required

The curriculum is designed to reveal how the current systems of law and government violate the right to community local self-government, and make it illegal for people to create sustainable communities when local aspirations interfere with corporate or state interests.

- Learn:
- How corporations have hijacked our democracy and the right to govern our own communities.
 - How to reframe exhausting and often discouraging single issue work in a way that confronts corporate control on a powerful single front: People's Constitutional Rights.
 - How local citizens can gain the powers needed to protect themselves and future generations from threats to their health, safety, and environment, using the powers of Initiative and Referendum which Home Rule charters provide under the Ohio Constitution.
 - How to rewrite existing laws and ordinances in your community and gain their acceptance in your community.

* The Democracy School is named for a boy in Pennsylvania who died after exposure to sewage sludge classified as “fertilizer” under state and federal laws.
