

Ohio Center for ecological and evolutionary studies Kitzmiller Lectures by:

Professor Kevin Padian, University of California Berkeley

President, Board of Directors, National Center for Science Education

Kevin Padian was one of seven evolutionary biologists featured in PBS's NOVA 2007 episode: "Judgment Day: Intelligent Design on Trial". This program focuses entirely on the 2005 Kitzmiller v. Dover trial that ruled against the teaching of intelligent design in public schools. For his Dover Testimony plus slides go to: http://www.sciohost.org/ncse/kvd/Padian/Padian_transcript.html Kevin Padian was named as a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in 2007 "for distinguished contributions to the study of the vertebrate evolutionary adaptations and especially for his leadership in science education."

SANDRA STEINGRABER, Ph.D.

Ecologist, author, and cancer survivor, Sandra Steingraber, Ph.D. is an internationally recognized expert on the environmental links to cancer and human health. Steingraber's highly acclaimed book, Living Downstream: An Ecologist Looks at Cancer and the Environment presents cancer as a human rights issue. She brought together data on toxic releases with newly released data from U.S. cancer registries. Living Downstream won praise from international media, including The Washington Post, the Nation, The Chicago Tribune, Kirkus Reviews, Publishers Weekly, The Lancet, and The London Times. Steingraber was named a Ms. Magazine Woman of the Year, and later received the Jenifer Altman Foundation's 1st annual Altman Award for "the inspiring and poetic use of science to elucidate the causes of cancer," and from the American Medical Writers Association, the Will Solimene Award for "excellence in medical communication." The Sierra Club heralded Steingraber as "the new Rachel Carson", and Carson's own alma mater, Chatham College, selected Steingraber to receive its biennial Rachel Carson Leadership Award.
